Creating better health and wellbeing is all about being part of a vibrant and connected community and living in a pleasant environment, rather than just quitting smoking or eating better - important though these are. It means tackling debt, lack of jobs and training, missed education opportunities, poor housing, and loneliness. Being creative, having fun and joining up the dots is key to success. <http://www.wellnorth.co.uk/about-us/our-vision>

11:45am Questions and discussion*12:00pm The Bromley by Bow Centre, Dan Hopewell, Director of Knowledge & Innovation

The Bromley by Bow Centre one of the best examples of an approach which tackles the wider determinants of health, through combining quality primary care with over fifty different non-clinical social projects being delivered from one venue in Tower Hamlets. Since 1997 it has worked collaboratively with the Bromley by Bow Health Partnership to create a new and unique model of delivery which has a holistic primary care operation at its core. The services available stretch from healthcare for residents; to opportunities to set up your own business; from support with tackling credit card debts to becoming a stained-glass artist; from learning to read and write to getting a job for the first time or a helping hand up the career ladder. <http://www.bbbc.org.uk/>
