Workshop: Developing inclusive skills pathways for adults in low-paid work

Learning and Work Institute (L&W) are working with local areas across the UK to develop inclusive skills pathways, that can support wider participation in adult learning for people in work and at risk of low pay and in-work poverty.

Inclusive Skills Pathways could ...

- make it easier for working adults to take part in learning to help them get on in their job, get a new job or change career;
- support local businesses by helping to fill their skills gaps;

The workshop will be in two parts:

- Part 1: Presentation of the aims of the project and learning from other places.
- Part 2: Table discussions on local needs, potential partners and possible local approaches.

Who should attend:

- Local education and learning providers;
- Providers of careers IAG and employability support;
- Local partners who engage with adults in work;
- Employers interested in upskilling their staff;

Please confirm your attendance by emailing colin.neilands@communitus.co.uk.

If you would like to discuss the project further, please call Kathryn Ray on 020 7840 8334 or kathryn.ray@learningandwork.org.uk
